COMMISSIONERS REVOKE ALL THE SUNDAY RIGHTS

The License Board Takes Away Right of All Restaurants and Hotels to Sell After Hours and on Sundays.

The following licenses were granted:
Lewis & Co., Ltd., wholesale; J. P. Medeiros, Waialua, wholesale; Ah Chow, Heeia, retail; Shigematsu, Waipahu, wholesale.
The following were granted without Sunday and after-hours privileges:
Waikiki Inn, Moana Hotel, Seaside Hotel, Young Hotel, and Haleiwa Hotel.
Waipahu saloon, present license extended three months in order to give the Deas estate time in which to settle up its affairs.
R. Tanaka, Honolulu, asked for rehearing of his case, but this was denied.
E. L. Berndt, Harbor Saloon, asked to have his license transferred to Matthew Heffern. Denied.
Union Grill and Royal Annex Cafe had rehearing in regard to Sunday privileges. These were denied.
James Thompson received permission to keep his saloon open on Alakea street until July 3, as his Bethel street place will not be ready for opening until that date.

Every Sunday privilege to hotels and restaurants in the city of Honolulu was revoked at the meeting of the Oahu Board of License Commissioners yesterday afternoon. This action was taken in an executive session of the Board, and means that hereafter no drinks, under any conditions, may be served on Sunday in any restaurant or hotel in the city.
Fighting to the last ditch for the Sunday privileges, liquor men and their attorneys were present in force at the public meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Capitol. E. C. Peters, appearing for Al Thurlow, proprietor of the Royal Annex, presented a plan that for a time was thought to be the salvation of the restaurant and hotelkeepers with regards to the Sunday privilege. He stated that, while he was not the attorney for any other than Thurlow, he had consulted with every restaurant man and hotelkeeper who has in the past had the Sunday privilege, and that each and every one had expressed a willingness to carry out the plan proposed by Peters. This was:

DAUGHTERS OF HAWAII UNVEIL TABLET ON THE NUUANU BATTLE SITE

A marble tablet, commemorative of the Battle of the Nuuanu Pali, was unveiled, with appropriate ceremonies, yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Pratt, for the Daughters of Hawaii. This tablet is set in a niche, cut in the rocky face of the pali, just at the turn of the Nuuanu road.
The tablet is of gray marble, inscribed as follows:
"Erected by the Daughters of Hawaii, 1907, to commemorate the Battle of Nuuanu, fought in this valley, 1795, when the invading conqueror, Kamehameha I., drove the forces of Kalanikupule, King of Oahu, to the pali and hurled them over the precipice, thus establishing the Kamehameha dynasty."

Over a hundred years ago, the invading warriors of the Great Kamehameha drove the defenders of Oahu up the narrow valley of Nuuanu and over the pali's brink to their death. Yesterday, two score of the Daughters of Hawaii and their guests assembled on the pali's brink and unveiled a tablet to mark the spot where final victory crowned the invader's effort. The Conqueror and his barefooted warriors fought from the sea to the summit against a brave enemy, fighting for their homes; the Daughters of Hawaii sped rapidly over the same ground in flashing automobiles. The spearsmen of Kamehameha fought their way from heiau to heiau, from one series of rocky barricades to another, through terraced taro patches; the Daughters of Hawaii, gathered in his honor, sped past handsome villas, picturesque summer homes and bungalows, over a macadamized highway lined with imported trees.
But it was the same old pali wind that greeted them. The same blasts that brought the sounds of battle down the valley during that death grapple in 1795 caught up the strains of Hawaii Pono yesterday and tossed them makai of the reservoir; the same gale that tossed the locks of the Lonely One, as he leaned upon his bloodstained spear and ordered the slaughter to be stopped, yesterday tossed the skirts of the Daughters of Hawaii, twisted the peach-basket hats and tagged masculine headgear ahead of pursuing owners. It was the same old pali wind, a hundred years older and stronger.
It was a noteworthy gathering which crowded in the lee of the rock guard on the turn of the pali road, including the present Governor of Hawaii, a former Governor and President, a descendant of the Hawaiian leader of the troops who pushed back the Oahuans, and a descendant of an Oahu chieftain

RAID ON THE TREASURY FUND

City Salaries Raised in Many Ways and Amounts.

The supervisors, headed by Aylett, made a raid upon the City and County Treasury last night by boosting the salaries of nearly everybody employed in the county. Aylett plunged into the session with a bunch of resolutions, to specify individual salaries instead of passing the lump appropriation resolution, presented by Logan, covering over $300,000. Aylett sprung a trick upon his fellow-supervisors and at first they were inclined to vote him down, but he was supported by Kane and Ahia, with Logan, Quinn and McClellan opposed, giving tie votes, as Cox was absent. Finally, some of the resolutions were passed and then the whole set of resolutions went through quickly, much to Aylett's surprise.
The meeting was charged with electricity, Aylett making Fourth of July speeches. There was petty politics played in some of the proceedings and the meeting had little head or tail to it.
In the matter of appointments Mayor Fern is to be congratulated for nominating Halvor Myhre, as Milk Inspector, in order to prevent obstruction in one of the most important departments of the city government. The Mayor had another appointment to make, but in deference to what may have been public interest, he nominated Mr. Myhre. A. K. Williams was nominated for Fish Inspector and both appointments passed.
The big appropriation bill calling for expenditures for salaries and materials and supplies covered $312,568.50 according to Mr. Logan's figures. This does not include an auto for the mayor.

HIS HONOR TAKES COURSE IN STEERING AN AUTO

Will Mayor Joseph J. Fern be his own chauffeur? Or is the Mayor of the opinion that it is better to be the owner of a car that is outside the jurisdiction of the City Fathers? Questions similar to the above were asked yesterday afternoon when, seated at the steering-wheel of one of the finest tour-about automobiles in the city, Mayor Fern was seen coming down King street.
The Mayor was not to be found subsequent to his afternoon ride, and consequently the burning question as to whether the city's chief executive has decided to be his own chauffeur, and also that of the Board of Supervisors, has not been settled. Jim Quinn might have put in a requisition for the job, had he known that it was to be made one of dignity.
To be sure, the Mayor had his teacher with him yesterday. The teacher explained things and the Mayor, who has a reputation for "doing things," carried out orders. The Mayor evidently had been taught the intricacies of "shoffering" an auto in the outskirts of town, for when he appeared on the business streets he sat bravely on the right-hand front seat and speeded 'er up.
Down King street came the Mayor in one auto and at a rate of speed that made even the trained chauffeur at his side shiver and shrink back into the darkest seclusion of his seat. There were some murmurs of "scorch!" but these were quickly hushed down by the Mayor's friends. As the fine, big car successfully negotiated the intersection of King and Fort streets, passing Ewa-wards along the former, the Mayor was the cynosure of all eyes, as the poet might well say. Nor to right nor left looked he who guides municipal affairs, however, but drove right courageously onward.
The truth will out, and it will undoubtedly be known today whether or not the Mayor has decided to appoint himself as City and County Chauffeur.

A BANQUET IN HONOR OF IJICHI

Japanese Admiral Voices His Friendship for Uncle Sam.

Admiral Ijichi, officers of his training squadron, Captain Gleaves and officers of the U. S. cruiser St. Louis, local Army and Navy officers and representative men of this community were entertained at a banquet given by the members of the Commercial Club in the McCandless building last evening. The diningroom was appropriately decorated, Japanese and American flags being crossed on the walls to form the main theme of the decorations. Speeches were called for from Admiral Ijichi and from several others.
President Wakefield, who acted as toastmaster, called first for a toast to William Howard Taft, President of the United States. This was drunk standing. A toast was then proposed to the health of His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan. Consul General Uyeno asked the privilege of answering this toast, and he expressed the thanks of his nation for the friendly spirit displayed by the citizens of Honolulu, and especially by the commercial organizations, towards Japan. He then asked those present to join him in drinking the health of Governor Walter F. Frear.
President Wakefield, in a few excellent words, introduced Admiral Ijichi, the guest of honor of the evening, speaking the pleasure which the Commercial Club of Honolulu had in entertaining so distinguished a guest. In answer the Admiral said as follows:
Admiral's Speech.
"It is a most agreeable task for me to stand here in offering the heartfelt

LAND BUREAU TO BE MOVED

Department Will Go With the Public Works at Capitol.

Important changes, both in regard to personnel and methods of administration, will follow the consolidation of the Departments of Public Works, Land and Survey, which will go into legal and active effect on the first day of July, the beginning of the new biennial period.
In conformity with the plans of Superintendent of Public Works Marston Campbell, who will have full executive control over the three consolidated departments, the Public Lands Bureau will be moved from its present quarters in the Judiciary building and will be given space in the present quarters of the Department of Public Works in the Capitol. Mr. Campbell believes that this will tend toward the centralization of the work and be an important factor in contributing to successful administration.
The Survey Department will remain where it is at the present time, in the building mainly occupied by the Board of Health. It is believed that the Public Lands Department will be in full running order in its new quarters in the Capitol by August 1, although Superintendent Campbell is not sure that the new vault to be placed for the reception of the valuable land records of the Territory will be dry by that date.
The quarters to be vacated in the Judiciary building by the Public Lands Department will be used as an addition to the present cramped accommodations of the Tax Bureau, which has been forced to endure inadequate accommodations, electric lights being hung over the clerks' desks throughout the day, in addition to the smallness and general dinginess of the office.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The present theory of the police in the investigation of the horrible murder of Elsie Sigel, slum missionary, whose mutilated remains were found in a Chinatown joint, in a trunk, is that Leong Sing, accused of the crime and at first thought to have escaped in a steamship has himself been killed by an unknown person and that his body was secreted in another trunk.
